Botafogo aciona Justiça contra São Paulo por R$ 3,7 milhões de débito remainder

Deputy Editor

Rio de Janeiro, April 2, 2024 - 12:36 pm

The Botafogo football team has taken legal action against São Paulo, due to an unpaid debt of R$ 3.7 million, which is owed from the transfer agreement of midfielder Tchê Tchê in April 2024. The club confirmed the existence of the debt, which was reduced due to a loan agreement for the player.

According to the club, the negotiation was made for a total of R$ 4.8 million, and 70% of the player's rights were acquired for R$ 3.4 million. The payment was due to be made in installments until February 2024, but the club failed to make the final payment of R$ 3.7 million.

The Botafogo club released an official statement, saying "The Justice is a normal route to conciliate differences between parties in an agreement. Botafogo trusts that it will reach a good agreement with São Paulo, a historical partner of the club."

This situation is not the first time that the two clubs have had disagreements over player transfers. In 2024, the clubs had a conflict over the transfer of the player Erison, which was settled out of court.

The Botafogo club is currently in the preparation phase for the new season, and has been reinforcing its team with new players. The club has also been in the news for its dismissal of coach Artur Jorge, who is now expected to take over as coach of the Lyon team.

The club's financial situation has been a subject of discussion in recent months, with the club's owner, Textor, saying that the club's debt is not as high as R$ 30 million, as previously reported. Botafogo's first game of the season is against the Palmeiras team, and the club is expected to have a large crowd of fans in attendance.

The club's main sponsor, Adidas, has also been in the news, with the club confirming a partnership with the sportswear brand until 2025.

Botafogo's rival, Flamengo, has been doing well in the current season, with the team leading the championship with 100% success rate.

Botafogo's next game is against the Lyon team, and the club is expected to field a strong team, with the recent addition of new players. The club's coach, Fernando Diniz, has been confident about the team's chances, saying that they will do their best to win the game.

In conclusion, the legal action taken by Botafogo against São Paulo is a significant development in the world of football, and fans of the sport are eagerly awaiting the outcome of the conflict. The game between Botafogo and Lyon is expected to be a thrilling encounter, with both teams known for their attacking style of play.
