Companies of fossil fuels force governments to pay compensation for losses of revenue in the transition to a global economy of 7 low carbon, according to ex-high officials of the United Nations

As companies of fossil fuels are forcing governments to pay compensation for 7 losses of revenue in the transition to a global economy of low carbon and are destroying the capacity of the world to 7 combat their activities prejudicial, alerted ex-high officials of the United Nations.

Mary Robinson, ex-president of Ireland and ex-UN climate envoy, said she was "indignant" with the activities of fossil fuel companies, including the forcing of governments to enter "investment treaties" that reward billions of compensation when countries reduce dependence on oil, gas and coal.

"It is very painful to analyze these investment treaties, there are many - 2,000 of different types", said Robinson. "If countries do the right thing about climate, they have to compensate fossil fuel companies. And they compensate investment treaties for R$62bn (£49bn) over a period of five years. It is one of these hidden subsidies. I was 7 indignant."

Several countries, including the UK, France, Germany and Spain, have signed the energy treaty, 7 under which the EU and other countries should cooperate in energy generation. However, many other such treaties are still in force, in accordance with the OECD.

Robinson also warned that lobbyists for fossil fuels have weakened significantly a 7 expected treaty on plastic waste that is catastrophically filling the oceans and is increasingly hampering the 7 annual meetings of the UN Climate Conference on climate.

"We see our role in the Cops, we see it has some years and it is intensifying. This is the problem, it is a progression", she alerted. The plastic treaty of last year was "threatened", she said, as well as the plans for a global resolution to gradually eliminate fossil fuels in the last meeting of the 7 Cop freebet on registration Dubai of last year.

"It is very evident that there was a lot of pressure freebet on registration Dubai before we got the text that 7 we got", she said. In the final conclusion, the Cop28 freebet on registration Dubai did not require a complete elimination, but a weaker resolution, for 7 "transitioning out of fossil fuels", which marked the first time that all countries made such an agreement.

"I found it commendable that 7 was progress - not so much
