Santos receiver folga after Palmeiras win, prepares for second leg

The Santos squad received a day off on Monday, a day after their 2-1 win over Palmeiras at the Vila Belmiro stadium in the first leg of the Campeonato Paulista final. The team will begin preparing for the second leg on Tuesday, with five training sessions scheduled before the match on Sunday. The team will have a morning session on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, and will train in the afternoon on Friday. They will then travel to São Paulo on Saturday evening, with the second leg taking place at the Allianz Parque stadium on Sunday at 6pm.

Santos' coach, Fábio Carille, does not plan to change the team's system for the second leg, but may make some changes to the lineup. Striker Julio Furch is doubtful for the match due to a left adductor discomfort, and may be replaced by Morelos. Hayner is also back in the squad after serving a suspension, and will compete for a starting spot with Aderlan and JP Chermont on the right wing.

With a slight advantage, Santos can afford to draw in the second leg and still win the title. In case of a draw, the decision will go to penalties. The team hopes to end an eight-year drought without a title.

Here is the Santos squad's schedule for the week:

Monday (1): Day off

Tuesday (2): Train at 5pm at the CT Rei Pelé

Wednesday (3): Train at 10am at the CT Rei Pelé

Thursday (4): Train at 10am at the CT Rei Pelé

Friday (5): Train at 4pm at the CT Rei Pelé

Saturday (6): Train at 10am at the CT Rei Pelé and travel to São Paulo in the evening

Sunday (7): Palmeiras vs. Santos FC, 6pm at the Allianz Parque stadium

Santos FC vs. Palmeiras: possible lineups and game forecast

By Luiz Humberto

The Brazilian Championship is coming to an end, and the two teams that will dispute the title are already known. Santos and Palmeiras faced off in the first leg of the final at the Vila Belmiro stadium, and the hosts took a 2-1 win. The return match will be played at the Allianz Parque stadium, and the teams' lineups are already being speculated.

Santos is unlikely to make many changes to their lineup, as their 2-1 win gives them a slight advantage. Julio Furch is out with a left adductor discomfort, and may be replaced by Morelos.

The team's coach, Fábio Carille, has several options for the right wing, including Hayner, who has just returned from suspension, and Aderlan and JP Chermont.

Palmeiras, on the other hand, needs to win the second leg to take the title. The team has undergone many changes since their last match against Santos, with several players leaving and others returning from injury. Coach Veríssimo is expected to make several changes to the lineup, including bringing in midfielder Patrick and striker Leandro Pérez.

The return match between Santos and Palmeiras promises to be an exciting encounter. With a slight advantage, Santos can afford to play more defensively and try to hold on for a draw.

However, Palmeiras needs to win, and will likely come out strong in search of a goal. A Santos victory would break an eight-year drought without a title, while a Palmeiras win would give them their first title since 2024.

The game is scheduled for Sunday at 6pm, and will be played at the Allianz Parque stadium in São Paulo. Ticket sales have already started, and fans are eagerly awaiting the match. Who will take home the title? Only time will tell.
