Ready to play? Here's a quick rundown of the rules of this classic casino game. We also have a guide on basic Blackjack strategies to help you out.

At the start of the round, choose your bet and place it in the betting area. The dealer will deal two cards to all players. Each hand will then carry a score, depending on the cards obtained. Picture cards (Jacks, Queens, and Kings) count as 10. Aces can count as either 1 or 11, depending on what else you have in your hand. Numbered cards from 2 to 10 carry their face value as points. The game aims to beat the dealer's hand without going over 21 points. To get the right hand, you will have a choice of actions that might help you.

- Stand: If you're happy with your first two cards, this action lets you stick with them.
- Hit: This tells the dealer you want more cards, in which they'll deal one at a time until you choose to stand. Just be careful not to go bust (over 21 points).
- Double down: Double your initial bet and get one extra card. A good tactic if you're happy with your hand but need one more card.
- Split: Got two cards of the same value? Make a second bet and the dealer will split them into two new hands. You can then play with 2 hands.

- Surrender: If you're not happy with your hand, choose this action to give it up and get back half your initial bet.

If you get a card worth 10 points and an Ace as the two first cards, it is called a blackjack, or natural hand. At this stage, only the dealer getting blackjack as well can stop you from winning. After all players are done, the dealer will also deal himself cards and play. If he busts, all players win. If not, players standing above the dealer in points win.

There might be a series of additional options or side bets accompanying different variations of Live Blackjack. These include perfect pairs side bets, insurance bets, and more.
